Jeffrey,

you made an interesting comment tonight, when you said, "its hard to believe we feel turbulence all the time during our flight" that is a very correct statement, I agree with you, along with the vibration, the turbulence is always present, until we start a decent,. I will relay this to Gulfstream in SAV on Monday,. wing is super critical, could be to much paint build up on wing surface, aileron balance, or all of these items,,,,since the vortex generators are blended with paint, i'm sure the rest of the aircraft is also,.
