████████,

Here's a draft email for Jessica @ Business Insider. Summary - The mug shot image is now being pulled from the media server instead of the post and we are requesting they remove the image and/or replace it with one of ours.

Once this is done we should see Google update quickly once the algorithm realizes the image no longer exists. I didn't attach the black and white image to this email but please do when you send it to Jessica.
Best,

Tyler

Hi Jessica,

It appears the mug shot image is still showing up first in Google images under Jeffrey Epstein's name. Google is now linking directly to the media server hosting the image even though it has been removed from the article.
I would be very grateful if you could remove this image on the media server. I have attached an image that you may use to swap it with if you would prefer that.

Thank you so much for your help!
