Subject: New programs about the brain and the mind

Elkhonon Goldberg, Ph.D., ABPP-CN

Director of Luria Neuroscience Institute, Neuropsychologist and Cognitive Neuroscientist, Scientist, Speaker, Clinician

Dear Colleague,

I am pleased to introduce new educational programs about the brain and the mind offered by Luria Neuroscience Institute. The programs are intended primarily for professionals concerned with mental health and with brain and brain disorders, but they are also open for the members of the general public.

1. Brain and Cognition: A Lecture Series

This lecture sequence covers a wide range of topics on the relationship between the brain and the mind. It is intended for professionals concerned with brain health and brain disorders. Brain mechanisms of major cognitive functions will be reviewed, as well as the major neurocognitive clinical syndromes.

2. Major Neurocognitive Disorders: A Lecture Series

This lecture sequence covers a wide range of topics on major brain disorders affecting cognition. It is intended for the professionals concerned with brain health and brain disorders. Brain mechanisms and cognitive characteristics of major disorders affecting cognition will be reviewed.

3. Neurocognitive Clinical Case Review: A Workshop

This workshop is offered in the form of group discussion. It is intended for the professionals actively involved in the diagnosis and treatment of neurocognitive disorders. Participants will be able to present their own challenging clinical cases and to discuss interesting cases presented by the instructor. Clinical cases representing a wide range of neurocognitive disorders will be reviewed.

For more information about the programs please visit <http://www.lninstitute.org>

45 CE credits are being offered for each of the programs.

Each program is a five-day series (one day a month, January-May, 2014) offered on weekends. The number of participants will be limited to 30 to enable active audience participation. Please reserve your seat now.

All lectures and workshops are held at the Helmsley Park Lane Hotel (36 Central Park South, New York, NY 10019).
