Hello Larry,

I was finally able to meet with Sultan late last night and after his Board meeting earlier this week he's determined to stand down on any aircraft purchase for now. I apologize for the delay in getting the final position communicated but as this organization is a publicly listed company, everything - and I do mean everything - becomes complicated at one point or another and the boss has been inundated with meetings.

I know how much time you have had to add to your already busy schedule to answer up on all of the Beast questions and it is deeply appreciated. Taking the time out of your G4 training to show us around at the last minute helped us immeasurably at that point.

[REDACTED] and I were looking forward to banging this machine around Africa and the rest of the world but for now we are shut down.

Thank you again for all of your efforts and I will see you on the ramp somewhere. I will be the one with the white hair.
