Yes, the grass is actually dormant- the week in the container tricks it into thinking its a seasonal change. I should have held it longer here to reflush- only a small amount were coming back out when I shipped. We'll make anything that is a problem right.

I did a quick check on what we paid for the Bougainvillea against our billing. I'm not sure who in Florida sells them for 3-4 times less (unless they're in much smaller containers), as our markup on all of the Bougainvillea came to $2,736.50 over 150+ plants. And out of that we unloaded them here, treated and fertilized them and reloaded them to ship again. And flew to Miami and hand tagged them after viewing 15+ nurseries. Mr. Kahn stated that he could get them cheaper as well, but I'd like to know where...I'll buy a container load and grow them out here for sale to LSJ or anyone else that's interested. Our retail price is 30% higher than your cost, and we sell every Bougainvillea- no matter the size- in a very short time frame.

I think you got great plants at a very fair price. I just should have maintained the original grow out schedule longer so you wouldn't be disappointed and have to question the decision in using us. My apologies- we'll work through this. I appreciate your business, and your patience.
