

24 July 2013

WWW Conference Speakers:

As you know The WWW Conference App is set to release on 15 August 2013. The App which is wonderfully navigated and designed by Josh Koppel at ScrollMotion contains all of The WWW Conference conversations. The footage of these improvised pairings is currently being hosted by FORA.tv for use in the App. (Approximately 15 hours of conversations).

We have received such a substantial amount of assets from those speakers that participated that there will need to be a major update following the release of the App in order to include all of what was sent in to us. That being said, please note, that the App will only contain a portion of the material that we have received from those speakers that sent us content. The rest will be included through an update that will be available in the last quarter of this year.

Please be patient with me, I am still on a learning curve.

I think you will be pleased with the navigation capabilities this App offers, as well as the deeply seductive and high quality conversations.

A special thank you to Greg Harper and Jeremy Brunjes for their technical work and editing and Jon Kamen of @radical.media for his photography. An enormous thank you to our host Jack Dangermond and Esri. Thank you also to our first sponsor GE and those to follow, Will Hearst III, and Jeffrey Epstein.

RSW