

To: jeffrey epstein (jeevacation@gmail.com)[jeffrey epstein (jeevacation@gmail.com)];
jeevacation@gmail.com[jeevacation@gmail.com]
From: Boris Nikolic
Sent: Wed 6/5/2013 6:29:58 AM
Subject: FW: intro...

Curious to hear if you think that there might be something here.

It is a company Brilliant.com that has a goal to identify smartest young people worldwide.

It uses an internet platform to find them and recruit them and is planning to act as next Linkedin/recruiter.

It is a new version of practical problem solving MENSA

I like a theoretical concept. My bias is that focusing on a top 1% is more likely to result in a change than focusing in 99% bottom.

However, I am not sure that got it right.

A guy that funds them is great. He is one of the uprising starts of the silicon Valley - Chamath
Palihapitiya

They asked for a co-investment and a brand name.

I need to get all info but was just curious of your gut feeling

From: Sue Khim [REDACTED]
Sent: Wednesday, June 5, 2013 11:11 AM
To: Boris Nikolic
Subject: Re: intro...

Hi Boris,

The TEDx organizers made the video public. Here is the link again for your convenience. Please let me know if you have any difficulty streaming the presentation.

Regards,

Sue

On Tue, Jun 4, 2013 at 5:11 PM, Sue Khim [REDACTED] wrote:

Hi Boris,

It appears that the TEDx organizers have locked the video so that only members can view it at the moment – I have asked them to unlock it and make it public, and will let you know as soon as it is available. I can also add some captions to the presentation slides from the talk and send to you later tonight.

Were you able to view the PDF and the sample student solution? I can try to send lower-resolution (but still readable) copies if connectivity is an issue.

Regards,

Sue

On Tue, Jun 4, 2013 at 2:01 AM, Boris Nikolic [REDACTED] wrote:

Hi Sue

Thank you.

I am in Myanmar and my connectivity is super limited (only in a hotel). Also there are no cell phone roaming.

I just tried opening your TEDx talk but it asks me to log in as a video is private. Please help

Looking forward to talking to you soon

Boris