X may be a variable but you offer X times 2, knowing that X actually equals 0.. I smile every time I think about it.

This not supposed to be a new deal for the future, this is the collection part of a very old one. I understand you have a different view, but from my perspective there was a number of deals that never came through because of some clever loophole you shared when it was time for your portion of the commitment. I don't want to have any new ongoing deals with you because of that - I don't want anything else to fight about. Lets make it simple. Making any of this dependent on X negates the purpose - security. X should not be part of this equation..

We should continue to narrow down the range of a fair compensation. 5mil and 0x2 seem to be a bit off...
