

To: Jeffrey Epstein[jeevacation@gmail.com]
From: Lisa New
Sent: Tue 6/11/2013 12:35:27 PM
Subject: just remembered

Dear Jeffrey,

I just remembered that in Hannah and her Sisters Michael Caine seduces Barbara Hershey with an e.e. cummings poem....the one that ends "not even the rain has such small hands." The William Carlos Williams poem about the plum is ALSO a poem of seduction and one with differences I would love to discuss with Woody. I'm poised to get that lunch date on the calendar and won't forget. But this email is just to let you know that the occasion keeps developing in my mind, and I so loved the opportunity to get to know Woody and Soon Yi and am now very excited to see this summer's film, of which the critics are already talking.

Jeffrey: you are up there on the list of Larry's friends as you are the only one ever whose private plane ride wasn't (for me) essentially captivity inside a conversation about finance (or whatever they call that stuff).

lisa

--

Elisa New
Powell M. Cabot Professor of American Literature
Harvard University
148 Barker Center

