Below from Woody Allen re getting together, etc:

I will definitely figure out some time to get together when you're in town. I'm still acting in the John Turturro movie which has turned out a bit longer than planned due to a delay from the hurricane. Soon-Yi and I will figure out some lunch or dinner time while you're here in town. If at any time you're up to it, I could screen an almost finished cut of my new movie for you in my cutting room but the only problem is if you're hating and are bored still you feel you won't be able to stand up and say "This stinks!" and leave (Of course, you would be free to do that)

Meanwhile, I had the brilliant idea that after our time in Paris on Christmas Day instead of flying off to your island (my worst nightmare) we could all fly off to Venice for a few days which is the best time of the year there. Just a thought.

Give me a call when you get to New York and we'll work out getting together.
Woody.
