Jeffrey:

The next steps would be to go over some of the questions I emailed to you including identifying exactly what kind of help your friend, President Waheed, would need for his upcoming presidential election

It would probably also mean a discussion with him or someone senior close to the actual campaign side of things to understand exactly what they are doing and what areas they are going to need help in when it comes to developing the overall campaign plan and timeline between now and the eventual election date

I would really need to get a sense of what they are doing, what else they could be doing, and what areas I believe I could help create or augment for them in creating a plan and developing a campaign organization for him

Let me know what works best for you

McGee
