unemployment vs, unemployable.. education is misdirected. should be concentrated on training of job skills. trigonometry is yesterday's news navigating social sites. creating new ways of lending . these are skills the urban underclass needs. healthcare needs, european history , how to factor a quadratic equation is still required of the young blacks.. train them on computer use, electronic music, parenting can be done with technology.

This is interesting -- a very counter intuitive report by Milken Institute's chief economist Ross Devol arguing that there will be a corporate recovery driven by massive tech expenditure (hence your look how many computers I have been buying remark) and feeding of overseas markets.

Just what you were telling me...
