Jeff,

On operations manual will take time as there is nothing in place. I have started gathering some notes on the different areas but it has to be written from scratch.

I did walk arounds at night and I sent you some pictures. Walkway lights to your bedroom were in place, the helicopter type lights on the wall were in place. As of Friday last week they were running the last of the electrical for the library path so I have not seen that one. Courtyard lights have been communicated that you want more and the flagpole light were being worked on as more electric was needed as you wanted more than 2 lights down there based on the courtyard. The mosaic lights were being investigated on Wednesday, a guy small enough was going to climb up there and make sure they can run the wire without disrupting the duct work. The Flood lights that you wanted were not started as they need to get power up there and Gary was trying to figure that out. Sample solar lights that you wanted were placed and waiting for a decision on which one you liked.

I have an email and call into Bart for the full schedule of materials and to confirm the 5 day schedule that he has proposed which with the size of the pool I don't believe is realistic. I will call him today to get final proposal and then put something together

Marc
