Jeffrey:

I have finished reviewing the CONI Report that you sent to me

I have also had some additional preliminary research on the Maldives done up here in Boston

Suffice it to say, your friend, President Waheed, is running for President in a very complicated and complex piece of real estate these days

Between the concerns of a rising influence of radical Islam and the worries about whether the Maldives will continue on their path of democracy

Combine the above with the influence and emerging economies of both India and China in what is now considered a strategic location in the ever important Indian Ocean

I believe it is an understatement to say that anyone looking to govern these islands (your friend included) will absolutely have their hands full

I am happy to discuss some preliminary campaign thoughts further with you if you wish

I am available this evening at the Home Office [REDACTED] or if you wanted to set a time and phone number for me to call into some time tomorrow that would be fine from my end as well

McGee
