

To: jeevacation@gmail.com[jeevacation@gmail.com]; jeffrey epstein[jeevacation@gmail.com]
From: [REDACTED]
Sent: Fri 3/23/2012 8:43:35 PM
Subject: FW: Harvard Law School - Decision Notification

will try LLM some time in the future!

---

From: [REDACTED]
To: [REDACTED]
Date: Fri, 23 Mar 2012 15:48:37 -0400
Subject: Harvard Law School - Decision Notification

Dear Ms. [REDACTED] (L32061194):

I am sorry to report that, after full and careful consideration, the Admissions Committee has denied your application for admission to Harvard Law School. During this admission season, over 6,000 candidates are applying for spots in an entering class that is limited to 560 students. A large majority of these applicants have demonstrated strong academic preparation for law school and the ability to contribute significantly to the quality of our student body. As a result, we must select a class that we believe to be the very best from an outstanding pool and deny admission to many candidates whom we would like to have at Harvard.

Denials of admission are neither negative estimates of potential for the study of law nor absolute assessments of candidates' achievements. Rather, they are the inevitable result of many attractive candidates for comparatively few spaces in our class.

Thank you for your interest in Harvard Law School, and best wishes for your education and career plans.

Sincerely,
Jessica Soban
Assistant Dean and Chief Admissions Officer