i wanted to verify it is ok for shipping engines to Florida at 3,000 cost via tropical Larry says we should get 6k for each for 3 engines shipped plus he also has one in storage
please advise

min sales proceeds = 6k x 4 = 24k less 3k should net 21k

Rich,

I had a full Mercury Engine update to computer and service completed before I shipped the midnight to LSJ, The boat ran flawlessly for me during the two hour boat ride from West Palm Beach to Fort Lauderdale the day I shipped the boat to LSJ, I personally operated this boat in excess of a year, with NO problems, I don't understand what happens when equipment arrives in STT,,, engine mounts break and power steering units crack etc, which are some items LSJ has experienced on this boat since they started operating. Just wanted to state this for the record. In regards to Value, the Verado engine is very popular in South Florida and we should be able to offer the FOUR engines for $7,500 each, with a low figure of $6,000 per engine when we sell them to off set the cost of new engines.

thank you.
Larry

Larry,
Does JEE know that shipping cost is $3000
Also i am so confused that these engines are in such bad shape as i know they worked perfectly before you shipped.
Didn't you also have them serviced?
btw - LSJ has spent over 20k hauling out boat and trying to repair...
Please advise

Good Day Rich,

Your approval is needed for the following:

The attached documents is for the shipment of the Engines to West Palm Beach in c/o Larry Visoski. A 20' container is schedule to be picked up by Johnny Weekes today from Tropical Shipping and transported to LSJ to be loaded. Once loaded container will be pick and transported back to Tropical on Monday for sail on Thursday May 3, 2012. Once container gets to West Palm, Tropical will make the arrangements for inland freight to Galaxy Aviation (email attached) for a total cost of $370.00. Which can be charged to our Tropical Account. The estimated cost to ship the 20' container is $2,659.00. I'm awaiting paper work from custom's broker Lund & Pullara, so that cost is pending.

Total tropical shipping charge will be $3,029.00.

If any further information is needed please contact me at your earliest convenience.
