Any chance you could do 30k? Both collaborators have non-profit status if that helps. It would be a huge help and could launch something great.

Thanks for considering.

i am touch with two colleagues interested in joining me in creating the teacher olympiad. one, megan harvey, was a harvard ed school graduate and runs a not-for-profit software company that coordinates teacher education materials. the other, andrew magliozzi, runs veritas tutor that started in cambridge, and also a harvard undergrad and grad. both are savvy and have a good sense of the ed space, and interface with technology. both keen to get this going. i am attaching rough wireframes.

we don't need a lot to get this started. megan's software has the backbone ready. we need a graphic interface overhaul to make it look slick, inviting and clean. we need funds for advertising, to help it go viral. since it is a not-for-profit, would you be willing to help out with some investment to get it started?

happy to talk more.
