Is now a good time to revive the Arab peace initiative?

U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry has made no secret of his desire to jump start the Israeli-Palestinian peace process. Press reports have suggested that to do so he may attempt to convince the parties in the region to reconsider the so-called Arab peace initiative.

However, with all of the necessary parties focused on regional turmoil and threats - from the instability in Egypt to the civil war in Syria to the Iranian nuclear program - this does not seem to be a propitious time to push Israel to make dangerous concessions to neighbors who show no new interest in peace. In fact, rather than expanding peace, the greater fear at the moment is that the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty might unravel.

Diaspora Communities: New Polish Jewish Museum

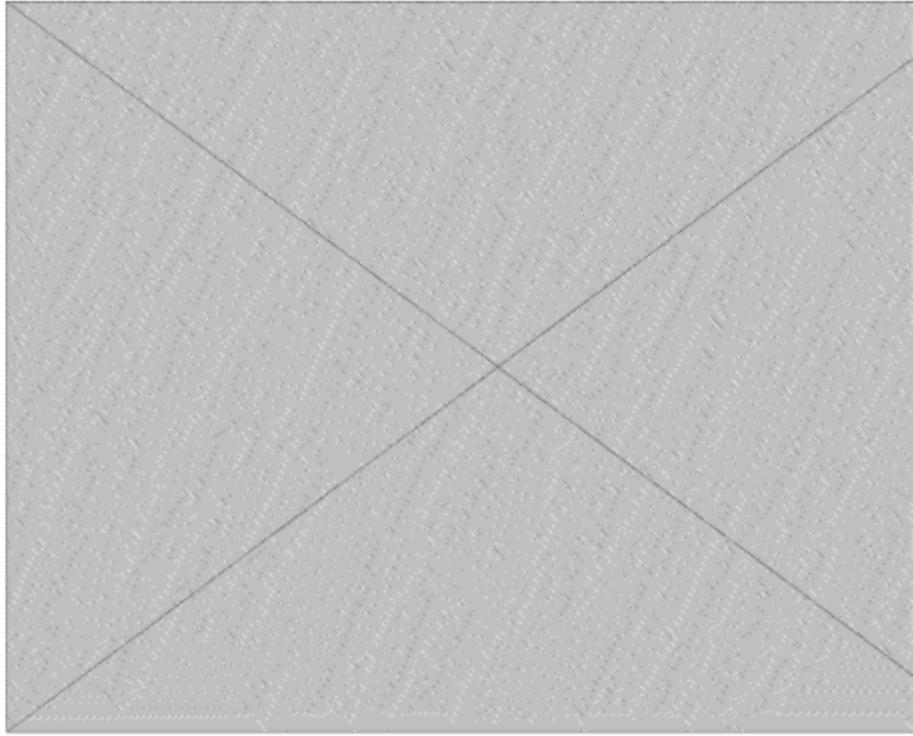

The Museum of the History of Polish Jewry opened recently in Warsaw. The building faces a plaza and a memorial commemorating the Warsaw Ghetto Uprising heroes and heroines. Finnish architects Rainer Mahlamaki and Ilmari Lahdelma won the contest for the design of the museum; and the city of Warsaw donated the land and $13 million to the project.
