Yes, that software was to move forward, as Jessica was going on about it and leading me to believe that you wanted to continue, expand, etc., but I kept telling her that her "expansion" suggestions had already been done, and we were just waiting for the bots to pick it up on the sweep this week, and no need to hire additional crews, etc. My response is not someone who is trying to drain you of capital...

Please don't talk to me in a negative way about "my results speak for themselves." You couldn't get anyone to give you the results that you got (and that includes the highest end seo companies), and I know it, and everyone else knows it, and so don't try to belittle. It won't work, and only works with those people who don't actually know what they are doing. And don't talk to me about the "results" you get from others helping. Pablos didn't help either. I was the one who came through time and time again, and through the night. It was also my friends who "hacked" for favors and did other things, who I didn't have to pay, and therefore don't show up on the accounting books.

FYI, in spite of all her emails, and my requests for material, including asks for specific material to be edited, jessica has not once supplied me with any material. Neither useable or unusable. Nothing, and therefore, it fell on my head again, and I have to create it.

In the afternoon, when Mike did get word from you that you were taking care of it, then, he did go out and get the stuff and started working on it, but we missed the sweep that we knew about. So, it wasn't that we were "uninformed" and this happened. When google does its next sweep, it will all be restored and then better, as it will pick up the results of last month.

I want to talk to you about the island thing as that is coming up. When can we speak. I have someone here at 9:00.

I agree about moving on, and I understand your, but you had people on your side, who actually were trying to insure that it didn't collapse... It was the time wasted during the day because of the other distractions. If you had just said, "taking care of it," he would have gone out , got the new computer, and reset the system. Also, note that no one was asking for any additional monies, and the costs would have been absorbed on his end. He had just bought some expensive software on your behalf. That was why his account was low, and I don't have the funds to cover it either.

The problem wasn't from "management."
