bill: OK! and sorry sorry sorry...he wants to know though. and you are both in the same boat as far as being expert vs. amateur on a range of issues. but you are both funders and shapers in many spaces where you both share only amateur ability! from where i sit (special initiatives) there are things you both might enjoy doing together. but i will run things past you in the future and see if you want me to share it with him.

ygl: thanks! it is a neat opportunity problem: relates to his mother and a game she is playing. he says he is stumped with how to respond but that you understand the mind games better than anyone else. i am kind of caught in the middle. it is not urgent, nor serious - just a silly social/human/family thing that i am not well-equipped to solve. it's rare when steve says "we need to call in the big guns! call jeffrey!"

congratulations,, you should feel good about it.. re steve,, what " problem " , re Bill , lets be more careful in forwarding him things that in any way reference me that has nothing to do with either macro economics , or currencies.. I want he and I to focus on areas I truly understand as opposed to those that i only have an amateur opinion on. thanks and again congrats

I got voted in to be a YGL at the world economic forum. bill recommended me, lord knows what he said. boris pushed the application through.
not that you ever need help networking or socializing but it would be fun to have you at davos next year!
or to help me think of a cool project for me/bill or me/melinda to do.
