

To: Brian Rogers [REDACTED]
From: [REDACTED]
Sent: Sat 1/16/2016 3:14:52 PM
Subject: Re: did you ever hear back from United for the Troops?

Ok great! And if you could bring big zip locks that would be fantastic!!!

Sent from my iPhone

> On Jan 16, 2016, at 9:58 AM, Brian Rogers [REDACTED] wrote:
>
> Hi [REDACTED]
> I will drop off during the week and they will prepare for actual shipping next weekend
> We are good if we prepare 10 different kits each in zip locks
> I have big zip locks if you need them
>
> Brian

> Sent from my iPhone

>> On Jan 16, 2016, at 9:40 AM, [REDACTED] wrote:
>>
>> Hi Brian...did you ever hear back from United for the Troops? is this your buddy that does this? I am looking all over this website and don't see where these Care Packages are supposed to be dropped off...and now I am wondering if we are even supposed to separate the stuff at all into our own Care Packages...looks like they might separate the stuff the day the box it up to ship overseas on Jan. 23!?
>>
>> I thought you had done this before but maybe you haven't? I need to know if it is better to just keep the items in the boxes they came in from Costco or if the boys should be separating it all into individual care packages? I am confused now!
>>
>> I just left a message for Jim (your friend?) I am worried now that we may be going about this incorrectly...that the actual time to 'help out' is Jan 23rd with the packing part...? I am sure they would be very happy to get all these donations but where do we take them?
>>
>> Sorry, I wish I would have emailed you this all sooner. and I still want today to work out...but maybe the kids just write letters and Valentine's Day cards?
>>

[REDACTED]