Below from [REDACTED] re the security guard. She definitely does not want you to take it personally. Sounds like it will not happen again also!

Hello Lesley,
When I came back in the afternoon to the apartment, I could see she has been distracted... :)
I didn't know why till your e-mail.

It is nothing. They wanted in Israel to have the name of the people entering the apartment and the security guy took a personal initiative and instead of writing down her name, took a picture of the driving license. He was not supposed to do that, and it is nothing at all. You can assure her.
I will apologize to her on wednesday.

Hi [REDACTED]. The security man who is at your apartment took a picture of [REDACTED] drivers license ...is this something new that will need to be done every time she goes to clean? It has her distracted and nervous. I told her I am sure it is standard procedure and not to worry but she feels uncomfortable now.
