

To: [REDACTED]
From: Elizabeth Perkins
Sent: Tue 10/20/2015 2:31:34 AM
Subject: Re: Question?

That totally makes sense to me. When you have a big job you need that back up. Thank you for being so open about it. A few responses from other friends so I'll pursue them first. ♦

Zibby Perkins
[REDACTED]

> On Oct 19, 2015, at 8:32 PM, [REDACTED] wrote:
>
> HI Zibby! We missed you! Hope you had fun! We certainly enjoyed Cory!
>
> So the deal-e-o with [REDACTED] is she needs to be available for me every day all day, just in case! (my bosses schedule is never the same and often spur of the moment!) There are many days I do not need her at all...but for her to be on a rigid schedule with someone else, unfortunately does not work...we pay her for full time even though she is very much NOT full time (but I 'retain' her so she is at my beckoning call!) This all being said, I'm sure she would LOVE to help out whenever she can...but you may want (and understandably so) someone who is dedicated to show up every Mon and Tues 8-noon!
>
> I can ask G if she has any friends looking for a part time job for you!!! :) (and sorry to hear you housekeeper resigned! bummer!)
>
> :) Les
>
>
>
>> On Oct 19, 2015, at 6:17 PM, Elizabeth Perkins <zibbyperkins@gmail.com> wrote:
>>
>> My housekeeper just resigned to take a part time job - is your nanny/sitter still interested in work? I need someone Mon and Tues from 8-noon starting next week if possible. Laundry, housekeeping, help if child's home sick, and puppy walking.... Thanks Lesley - heard party was a blast!
>>
>> Zibby Perkins
>> [REDACTED]
>>
>