Of course you can't do it! Hopefully Suzy will step up, so fingers crossed! I'm going to talk to her this morning.

Thanks for understanding my position. Holden and Steve/I are good friends with the Perkins, Rassos, Bowlings, etc... ,and I think once their boys find out that this group is happening with all of their friends, their feelings will be hurt. Dominic asked about it a few days ago because someone mentioned it in front of him (ugh!), but Holden just said, "oh--it's nothing."

Just can't have my name associated with it at this point.

Oh My Nicole...what a shame...but I totally understand your awkward position. I'm happy to have the boys over at some point for a practice but hate to commit to be 'in charge'...I am in the city too much and just afraid I wouldn't be able to dedicate the time.

Honestly, I don't think the other boys will really even care, but I don't feel like I'm in the loop as much as you...I asked Ty if Dominic had said anything about the Variety Show and he said no....

sorry you got messed up in this...

If we need a practice tomorrow, we could have here! :)

Thanks Suzy.

I've cc-ed everyone on this communique so there aren't any misunderstandings.

I've told Kristin that Mac is welcome to join. However, the group keeps expanding and I'd like to avoid the potentially awkward position of telling other football kids "no" should more ask given I'm a Team Mom. As such, I think its best if I step down from the role of "organizer" although I'm still happy to help with rehearsals. So, Suzy can you or someone else take this on moving forward and communicate your good suggestion below to say that Andrew, Tommy and Mack asked to join the group after we originally formed it with last year's boys?

I've already emailed Kristin that someone from the group will be touching base with her shortly in regards to the details.

Thanks so much,

Nicole

Hi Nicole-- thanks for the email.

I think if we include Mack that we do not need to extend the invitation to all the football players. I don't think the kids define themselves that way and it's not like they previously asked and were turned down. I don't want to create more stress for you and I understand the worry of bruising feelings but if anyone seems left out or annoyed that you/we can say that Andrew, Tommy and Mack asked to join the group after you had originally only formed it with last year's boys.

I am sorry if we made things more difficult for you.

Let me know your thoughts. And thanks again for all the hard work. Tommy came over yesterday and knows most of routine already.

Best
Suzy Nolan.
