Sorry I missed your call. The answer is: Jeffrey does not have control over which photo is used (as I mentioned earlier, this breaches journalistic ethics). The remaining photos belong to the photographer. All photos belong to the photographer. We just buy the right to publish them.

These are standard journalistic rules. This is not at all out of the ordinary. Please call me. Thank you

Dear [REDACTED]

As I specified earlier during our telephone conversation, it will be possible for Jeffrey to negotiate to buy out his shoot. He can do this directly with the photographer. Please know however that he cannot buy out the shoot until after we are out on newsstands and through our embargo period. Our embargo period with our photographer is one month dating from when the issue hits stands. The embargo is simply to ensure no other publication will buy rights to publish the work in that time frame.
