

To: [REDACTED]
From: Corey Powell
Sent: Fri 11/14/2014 7:59:04 PM
Subject: Re: Reporting/writing

[REDACTED]

I'm just checking back to see if there is anything more you need from me. I assumed from your last note that you are now in the process of collating writing samples from various people whom Jeffrey might want to work with. But I'm happy to fill in more background detail if that would be helpful.

Sincerely,

Corey

Corey S. Powell, Interim Editor
American Scientist

[REDACTED]
americanscientist.org

On Mon, Oct 27, 2014 at 1:41 PM, [REDACTED] wrote:

Hello Corey and thank you for replying back.. I do hope you are feeling better! Jeffrey requested I print samples of your writing along with other writers...I believe he is evaluating and trying to determine what style of writer he is ultimately looking for...

thank you and we will be in touch! [REDACTED]

On Oct 27, 2014, at 3:35 AM, Corey Powell <[REDACTED]> wrote:

Dear [REDACTED]

Good to meet you virtually. Pardon my belated reply--I've been fighting off a pneumonia this past month and fell quite a bit behind on my email.

I'm curious to hear more about this project; I'm traveling this week but will be checking email routinely, and will be back in my office starting on Friday. Perhaps you can send me a little background information and then we can talk in detail directly?

Best,

Corey

Corey S. Powell, Interim Editor
American Scientist

americanscientist.org

On Mon, Oct 20, 2014 at 4:10 PM, DiChristina, Mariette  wrote:

Hi Corey,

Hope this note finds you well.

I'd like to introduce you to  who works with Jeffrey Epstein, the financier who has supported the work of many Nobel laureates—often by picking out ideas that nobody else has been willing to fund.

Jeffrey is always looking for great ideas, and he'd love to work with a fantastic reporter who can help him find them. He travels a lot, but is based here in Manhattan.

Naturally, I thought of you. If this opportunity sounds possibly interesting,  will follow up.

All best,

Mariette

Mariette DiChristina
Editor in Chief and SVP
Scientific American
75 Varick St., 9th Floor
New York, NY 10013

ScientificAmerican.com