I don't really have an official document for it. But he can use the email I sent. I do have an excel sheet I got from GeneDx showing failed sequencing runs from poor starting DNA. His sample (#76) shows poor quality on that spreadsheet. I'm hesitant to provide a copy of this though because I think it compromises YPO member privacy. (That said, the sheet only has the sample numbers so he would still need an additional ID key to know who signed up; so it may be possible.)

This is the only "official" document I have demonstrating this. Can I ask what he needs the documentation for? I can assure his sample is being treated the same as everyone else's if that's any concern.

Once his data is available, I can also prioritize analyzing and returning his results before the other 20 or so that need resequencing if that's helpful.

Also, I just want to also emphasize the collection of personal medical history and family medical history is confidential and purely voluntary.

Joe

We have high quality sequencing data on over 60% of our YPO people but the data is still being analyzed.

Unfortunately, Jeffrey's sample is among the 20+ samples that need to get resequenced due to some issues with the quality of the DNA extracted from saliva. Those samples will take another 2-3weeks.

I have been getting personal medical history and family medical history from YPO members to customize their medical analyses. If Jeffrey wants to voluntarily provide any of this by phone or email, I can work that info into his analyses once the data is available.

Thanks,
Joe
