

To: Mariette DiChristina-Gerosa [REDACTED]
Cc: Lesley Groff [REDACTED]
From: Paul Raeburn
Sent: Tue 10/21/2014 12:15:11 AM
Subject: Re: Writing/reporting

Mariette,

Thanks for the note. And yes, this does sound interesting, and I'd like to hear more about what Jeffrey [REDACTED] have in mind.

[REDACTED] Please drop me a note when it's convenient. As Mariette might have told you, I'm a former science editor at the Associated Press, former senior editor for science at BusinessWeek, the author of four books, and, like Mariette, a past president of the National Association of Science Writers. I can tell you more when we talk.

Best,
Paul

On Oct 20, 2014, at 4:09 PM, DiChristina, Mariette [REDACTED] wrote:

Hi Paul,

Hope this note finds you well.

I'd like to introduce you to [REDACTED] Jeffrey Epstein, the financier who has supported the work of many Nobel laureates—often by picking out ideas that nobody else has been willing to fund.

Jeffrey is always looking for great ideas, and he'd love to work with a fantastic reporter who can help him find them. He travels a lot, but is based here in Manhattan.

Naturally, I thought of you. If this opportunity sounds possibly interesting, Lesley will follow up.

All best,

Mariette

-----
Mariette DiChristina
Editor in Chief and SVP
Scientific American
75 Varick St., 9th Floor
New York, NY 10013

[REDACTED]
ScientificAmerican.com

-----
@praeburn

Author of "Do Fathers Matter? What science is telling us about the parent we've overlooked," published by Scientific American/FSG; and Acquainted with the Night (Broadway, 2004), a memoir of raising children with bipolar disorder and depression.

Chief media critic, Knight Science Journalism Tracker:

<http://ksjtracker.mit.edu>

Blogger at About Fathers for Psychology Today:

<http://blogs.psychologytoday.com/blog/about-fathers>