Hello Merwin and Lesley,

I spoke with Steve from Expedited Service (Steve is the head of our service division in NY), and Steve reviewed the service order and spoke with Chris. It was apparent from the service that there was no issue with the Precor hardware. Further, Chris was able to review Mike's installation and noted that there were no mistakes made by Mike.

Chris utilized an RF meter and found that there was a low signal from the input. The Precor AMT 885 P80 console has a suggested minimum of 60 B.F.'s (it is a high-definition tuner by default), and the signal was below that. Chris attempted to run the unit redirect to Set Box, but there were no alternate Set Boxes to connect to in an effort to circumvent the low signal. I was also informed that Chris checked the wire, too.

As per Chris, he did spend time on the phone with Precor Tech Support: during this call it was established that a different configuration be utilized to attempt to get the console to receive a signal. I am guessing this is where Merwin stepped in and programmed the configuration with Precor Tech Support.

Chris did take a service log from the machine via USB, which reads all error codes. So if anything else should arise or seem like it needs attention, we can review that initial data.

I apologize as I know the process was inconvenient, but I hope that this clarifies the circumstances and reflects that the Precor product itself is not compromised.

Thank you [REDACTED]

Nat,

No, John's people could not fix it. I had to program and register it myself with the help of Precor Tech support. It is now working as it should be.

Did we get charged for installation and programming?
Thanks

There is simply an issue with the TV-Tuner: the machine is otherwise installed properly, and was installed by a well trained and well regarded technician. Mike has A LOT of experience with installs of this nature. Further, I know Mike spent a considerable amount of additional time trying to rectify this issue on site.
