I love vinca vein. It's lighter green with white tips.

You don't like Japanese maples!! The Hydrangea we can get in blue and pink. That loses its leaves in the winter. Ivy takes a while to get going but it will look good with your house. We just got to get a definitive for the ground cover. There would be a nice variation in color if you used barbery and ivy.

Bob, I am going to answer you on all this stuff...Ty was in the Variety Show last night and I was knee deep in helping out...I want to do this right...I like stellas...but I definitely don't want rose bushes and I like Endless Summer hydrangea..the blues ...pinks are nice too...the ones Anna chose are white...I want to be particular..I don't like the yellow stuff you suggested..I had that at this house and made them pull it out a few years later...I am going to take pictures of the ground cover I like today...my next door neighbor has it here and it stays green all year it seems...I agree we need to keep simple for now. Screening the back yard for sure. Other stuff can wait...i am particular on trees. Don't like japanese maple...2 feature trees is enough for me now ...I am going to doctor and will get more out to you later...
