Thanks Lesley I have been very busy setting up this project but still monitoring JE house it feels weird after 18 years working somewhere else its like leaving family members . I didn't know it would be this hard . But I am getting a lot of new management technology which is awesome and learning to be part of a large corporation is very different . But the people I work with are nice. I will call you next week

Wow!! just thinking about you...hope all is going well and your new adventure on life will be evreything you hoped it would be...it's gotta be nice not having to drive into the city!! I realize it's only 2 days, but by end of the week I'll bet you will really appreciate not having to drive in! And saving the money on gas!!

Take care and I will be at the house next week and plan to bring home the globe to Ty...I told him about it and you and he was happy...for you and the globe!
