Hi Vicki...appreciate you looking into all this for us...I found some grey ledge stone and am having a sample sent to me...should arrive today or tomorrow...let me see what we think of it...I will be in touch...don't delve into the porcelain options...but thanks for asking...

Hi Lesley

I am not having great luck finding anything in that grey color with similar stones for a less expensive price. I found another vendor that will give me the Vtile in the 2x12 Silver Quartzite for $22.58SF but I know that this is still more than where you want to be. I am looking into some porcelain options that will be a grey color but not as irregular as the split face mosaic that you love.

Are you open to this idea or should I not bother with it?? Let me know when you have a minute.

Thanks,
Vicki

that is quite pricey! I didn't think the silver shadow would work though because there are no corner pieces?
Or do masons/tile guys know what to do when there are no corner pieces?

Would love to find something like the Vtile on the east coast and for less money...is that a hard order to fill?

Hi Lesley

I finally got some answers for you on the inquiry you made on the Vtile. The Silver Quartzite is available in 2"x12" and 4"x16". The flecked Andesite Flamed is available only in 4"x16".

These are individual pieces, not on a mesh backing. They come out of California and the lead time is 2-3 weeks. Based on your Square Footage, packing & freight is going to run between $450.00-$650.00. Can't confirm this until they actual weigh it.

Silver Quartzite 2"x12" $26.88SF
Silver Quartzite 4"x16" $34.25SF

Flecked Andesite Flamed 4"x16" $35.07SF

This material is quite pricey but there is not much like it. I am trying to see if I can find another vendor that has something similar that's less expensive. Let me know what you prefer to do. I think perhaps you may want to consider the Silver Shadow sample I sent you. Let me know your thoughts...
