Damian, [REDACTED] and [REDACTED],

Below is a list of what we can expect to see this upcoming week. I have organized it by day, instead of by unit. Also, with respect to the GC Unit, I have truncated the update to include less detail given the nature of the cases. Lastly, although I spent a decent amount of time speaking with [REDACTED] today, I have not included any information from White Plains. Please let me know if anyone would like more (or less) information – and if you want me to include White Plains matters – going forward.

I have addressed this to [REDACTED] I will forward this to her on Monday.

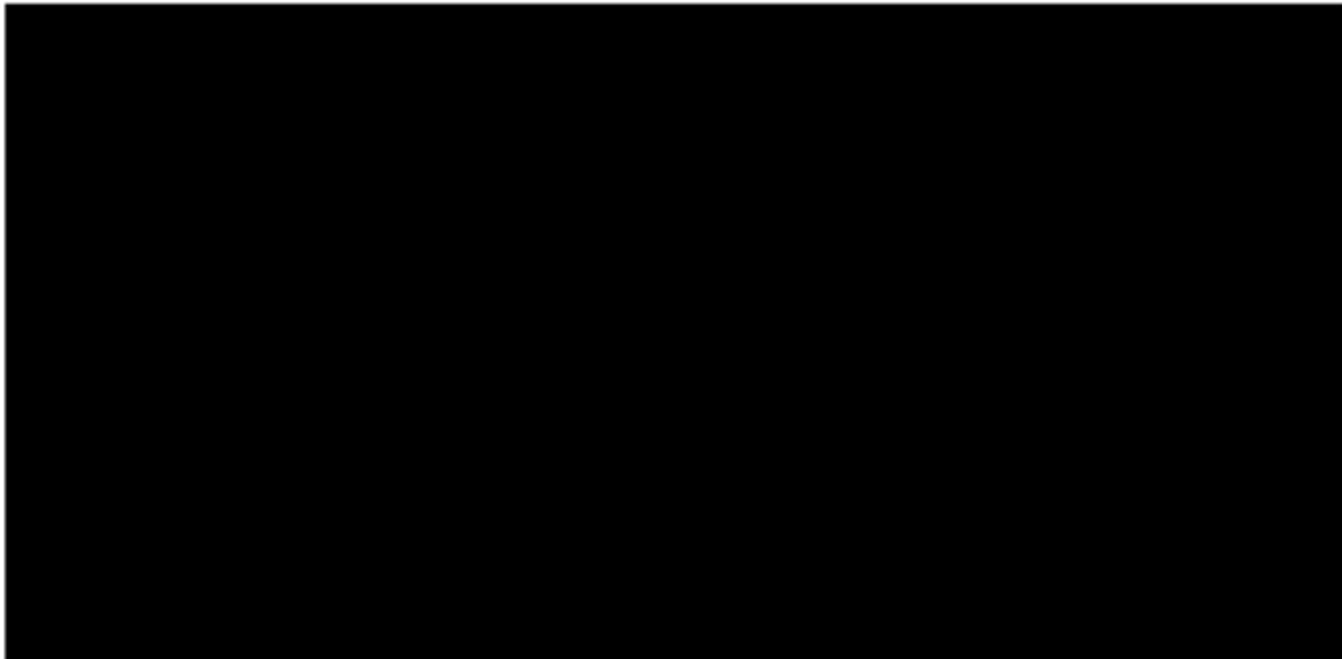

I hope you have a great weekend. I am available at your convenience if you have any questions.

*I understand that there are some [REDACTED] updates, but [REDACTED] thus they are not included here.

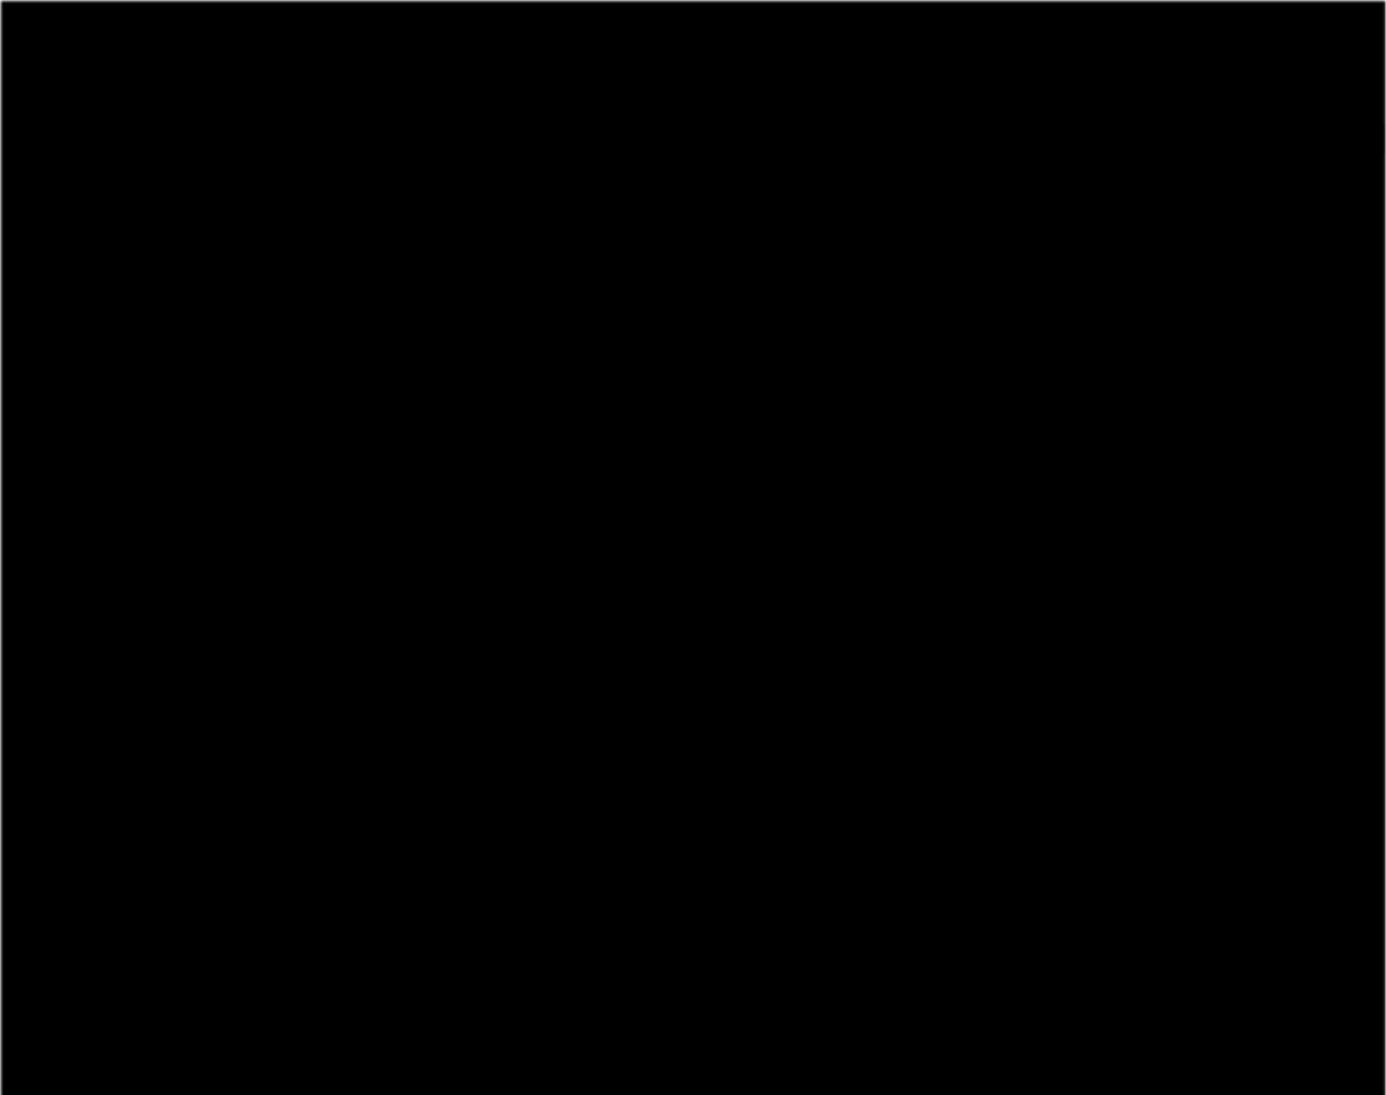

MONDAY

Trial begins in U.S. v. Ghislaine Maxwell. The AUSAs are [REDACTED], and [REDACTED]. The case is pending before Judge Nathan. [REDACTED] the Court has qualified a sufficient number of jurors and the Office will exercise peremptory strikes and then open on Monday morning. [REDACTED] will be opening. The trial is expected to last 4-6 weeks.
