A woman walked out wearing a towel who [REDACTED] now believes was GHISLAINE MAXWELL. She believed this based off of seeing her in the news. She described her as having short brown hair and was tall and thin. MAXWELL grabbed lotion and stated, "I think you'll be needing this more than me," then left the room.

Shortly thereafter, EPSTEIN came into the room wearing a robe. He lied on the table and [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] take off their tops. They rubbed his back or chest. Then [REDACTED] left. [REDACTED] then took her clothes off. EPSTEIN had a small wash cloth covering his penis and was noticeably touching himself. [REDACTED] began trembling and was very nervous. [REDACTED] came in and paid [REDACTED] $200. This money was given to [REDACTED] by EPSTEIN. [REDACTED] got paid $150 for bringing [REDACTED]. Prior to going to EPSTEIN's house, [REDACTED] was told this was how she was going to get paid.

This was the last day that she saw [REDACTED]; [REDACTED] never went back to EPSTEIN's again. Her friend [REDACTED] never went. [REDACTED] told [REDACTED] that EPSTEIN used [REDACTED] and the chef would make her food. [REDACTED] knew that [REDACTED] was 15 years old but told her to tell EPSTEIN that she was 16 so [REDACTED] did.

[REDACTED] filed a civil suit and got an attorney at 17 years old. This was how she knew that she was 15 years old at the time of the incident. [REDACTED] does not recall [REDACTED] reaching out to her afterwards. [REDACTED] recalled seeing an article about EPSTEIN in the Palm Beach Post newspaper which had led her to get involved with the civil suit. EPSTEIN's attorneys spoke to all of [REDACTED] friends but did not speak to her. [REDACTED] never spoke with police prior to this interview.
