

NEWS

Accused Ghislaine Maxwell 'lieutenant' [REDACTED] says she is victim

By Lee Brown

December 6, 2020 | 9:25am | Updated

The New York woman accused of being Ghislaine Maxwell's "lieutenant" has insisted she is also a victim of Jeffrey Epstein's depravity — and not a "monster" who helped him attack others.

"I've been made out to be such a monster — but it's not true," █████ █████, 41, told The Sun outside her $4.5 million New York home.

"I'm a victim of Jeffrey Epstein. I was raped and abused weekly," the accused enabler, █████ █████ █████ █████, told the UK paper.

█████ was Epstein's personal assistant for at least 10 years and has been named in lawsuits as the "lieutenant" and second in command for the moneyman's accused madam, Maxwell, who is currently facing serious sex crimes charges.

According to the lawsuits, she allegedly kept lists of young women to recruit as "massage therapists" for her boss, booked travel for them and even took them to his room where they were abused.

She has never been charged with a crime — but her parents have admitted fears that she will be arrested in a promised sweep of accused Epstein enablers.

After her employment with Epstein came to an end, █████ started an interior design company — █████ — at an █████ address with long ties to Epstein's sex ring.