[REDACTED], could you please reach out to Jill on Monday? She didn't respond to either of our emails this week after having been in touch with you, so just want to see if there's an issue. Thank you!

Jill,

Following up on this, it looks like we missed our window today, but would it be possible to schedule a call for Friday?

Thanks,

[REDACTED]

Jill,

Thanks very much for getting in touch, we greatly appreciate it, and we would be happy to speak with you. My colleagues [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] and I are the prosecutors on the case, and you've already been in touch with [REDACTED] and [REDACTED], the law enforcement officers, and we are available at 4.00 GMT tomorrow afternoon (11:00 a.m. our time) if that would be convenient to have an initial conversation.

Generally we can provide some information on the status of our investigation, and we also may be better positioned to provide a view of your client if you're able to give us some background information, and in any event we can get started with a call. Please let us know if 4.00 GMT tomorrow works for you, and if so what number we should reach you at then? And we look forward to being in touch.

Regards,

Jill,

Thank you for reaching out to me about your client and we appreciate your assistance in the matter. I've CC'd some of the members of our team including the prosecutors from the Southern District of New York. We agree that a call may be a good idea to hash out some of these details and questions you may have. Is there a particular time that works for you?

Dear [REDACTED]

My client has been in contact regarding the possibility of an interview to take place in London. Please note that my client is entitled to automatic anonymity under UK Statute as herself a victim of sexual assault that occurred in the UK and she does not waive her right to that anonymity.

I very much look forward to hearing from you in order that we may set up a convenient time for you to meet with my client but perhaps before that it would be useful if you could confirm the parameters of your interest in my client.

A call may be a good idea.

Kind Regards

Jill
