> 2. One evening, [REDACTED], [REDACTED] and I were watching some random movie, which contained various violent scenes. [REDACTED] became very agitated with the contents. He turned round to [REDACTED] and I and remarked " That if it was us and we played up, (he was referring to the woman in the movie) he would slice and cut our throats and would enjoy seeing the blood coming out "

> He made a similar comment on two other occasions about cutting our throats. I was terrified and shocked so was [REDACTED]. We were both speechless. He meant every word of it. That is what scared us.

> 3. [REDACTED] BIRTHDAY. Prior to [REDACTED] birthday, I asked [REDACTED] what he had bought for her. He replied, " Nothing, because he had no money." I was surprised because I thought he had a good job. I was speechless and frankly rather disappointed in him. After all, they are a couple. I loaned him £250.00 to at least buy her a card and take her out to Dinner etc. I stressed that this was a loan and had to be paid back within ten days. He was reluctant to accept this saying " I've pushed him into this " I thought this was very odd behaviour. They did go out that evening. Ten days later I arranged with [REDACTED] to collect the money (as [REDACTED] was unaware of this arrangement.) I agreed to meet him at 12.00 noon outside the front entrance of City Bank. When I arrived I was surprised to see an armed guard at the entrance, along with a sniffer dog. I was asked, what was my business being there and subsequently searched. Very odd indeed, it's a normal office building
