If you do not reply within two hours, I will send the letter your brother wrote to you to the New York Post. Of course, I will delete the name of the person to whom the letter was given. I'm just sure that after the letter is published in the media, you have to answer to all the sexual victims.

Send, damn stingy. $ 25,000 isn't a lot of money. I've been talking to you for two months. I have given you several documents and information. Send me my patience is over.

Mark, I have prepared a message with the content of several documents. I will send this message to twenty media outlets and news agencies soon. I have no doubt that you have access to your brother's money. This letter was important to you if you did not have access to your brother's money. I can't wait. The information I found from your computer will also be attractive to the media, including communication with two female models.
