> On Monday, two French government ministers called for an investigation into Jeffrey Epstein's activities in France after he was found dead in an apparent suicide while being held on sex-trafficking charges. "The American investigation has highlighted ties with France. It therefore seems fundamental to us, and for the victims, that an investigation should be opened in France so that all the light is shed on this matter," France's Gender Equality Minister Marlène Schiappa said in a statement. <https://www.france24.com/en/20190812-france-epstein-french-ministers-seek-investigation-paris-child-abuse>
