

DO NOT DISSEMINATE – Parkhouse, Tebet, and US Employee #1 are being harassed and threatened. Any information released will be used directly to further the harassment of Parkhouse, Tebet, and US Employee #1. Even the smallest detail can be maliciously used against all three individuals.

The purpose of the below account is my security intelligence concern related to Luke D. Thorburn and Addison Basurto and multiple harassing communications to me on multiple platforms. (Note: Basurto is possibly a representative of the media. It is unclear what relationship Thorburn has with media.)

Key concerns: Escalating threats against Parkhouse and Tebet by Thorburn, Online Stalking, Online Harassment, Slander/Defamation

On Friday, November 18, 2022, at approximately 5:30pm, U.S. Employee #1 invited me to a happy hour gathering at Dobe General Store (Address: Asa Sul CLS 112 BL A Loja 21 – Asa Sul, Brasilia – DF 70375-510). I arrived at Dobe at approximately 6:15pm. U.S. Employee #1 introduced me to Renato Tebet. Believing Tebet was a U.S. Embassy Employee, I introduced myself as Kristen Parkhouse Legat/FBI. I later learned he was not but has close affiliations with many individuals at the U.S. Embassy.

Tebet is the owner of two bars, Dobe and the Jungle Bar (Asa Norte CLN 408 C 48 – Asa Norte, Brasilia – DF 70856-530). For background purposes, the Jungle Bar is known as an embassy bar. While I live only a block away, I have never gone to the Jungle Bar. Additionally, other than going to dinner with a few girlfriends from the embassy and one local friend, in the year I have been in Brazil, I have not gone to a happy hour other than those organized by CLO (embassy community liaison organization).

After making introductions, a U.S. Employee Dependent arrived (his father is a U.S. Employee at the embassy and was not present). U.S. Employee Dependent joined us at the table. U.S. Employee Dependent is approximately 21 years old, is here living with his parents, and DJs at Tebet's bars. U.S. Employee Dependent was meeting up with a young lady for their first date. For background purposes, U.S. Employee Dependent's date also brought her female friend along. At the Dobe bar, U.S. Employee Dependent left the table several times to socialize.

Tebet and I had an enjoyable conversation. From the time I arrived until at least 7:45 pm, Tebet shared with me the following:

1. Tebet's aunt is Brazilian Senator Simone Tebet. Simone ran for president here in Brazil and placed third. After the first election, Bolsonaro did not reach out to her, but Lula did. It is believed by some that because seven million people voted for her, those votes went to Lula during the second election due to Bolsonaro's inaction to appeal to those that voted for her.
2. Along with owning two bars, Tebet owns a solar company. Currently he is focusing on rural farming. Additionally, he won the contract to provide solar power to the stadium here in Brasilia. The stadium, I believe, is the Arena BRB Mane Garrincha.
3. Tebet grew up in the USA in Rockville, MD until the age of thirteen years old. Tebet's dad was with IDB (Inter-American Development Bank), part of the World Bank from my understanding, which is a cooperative bank that helps support the economic and social development of Latin America and Caribbean countries. They moved back to Brazil because his dad needed to be closer to his parents.
4. We also talked about his girlfriend of five years, the engagement ring she wanted, and life in Brazil compared to the United States.

5. About me, we talked about my truck (Toyota Tacoma) which I brought with me, diesel vs regular gasoline. Food. Specifically, Michelin Star restaurants in Rio. My parents are coming to Brazil, and we are going to Rio. Tebet had some ideas of places we could go that were not Michelin Star but better. I gave him my person WhatsApp/email not my work so he could send me ideas. Note: U.S. Employee #1 had already reported Tebet as a foreign contact and the two were friends. U.S. Employee Dependent also worked for Tebet with the approval of his father, also a U.S. Employee. Therefore, I felt comfortable providing my contact information with Tebet.
6. Tebet mentioned he organized an interview for someone he knew and that they would be showing up soon and that the interview would take place at a table under the patio. He did not mention the nature of the interview.

At approximately 8:00 pm. Luke D. Thorburn arrived and sat down next to me.

Between approximately 8:30 pm and 9:00 pm two younger gentlemen arrive who were Brazilian and spoke Portuguese. They sat down next to U.S. Employee #1 and spoke with U.S. Employee #1 and Tebet. I learned later that the two young gentlemen were in some way employed or connected to Brazilian politics.

Between approximately 9:00 pm and 9:30 pm Addison Basurto arrived. Basurto later identified himself as a reporter from the National File:

When Basurto arrived, Tebet introduced me and mentioned that I worked at the FBI. While my fellow FBI colleagues and I are declared overseas, I typically do not mention where I work to keep things simple. Addison asked what I did at the FBI, and I responded that we provide training to overseas law enforcement agencies, which is true and is on our FBI.gov website. I also said I was not an agent. When asked how I got to Brazil, I mentioned that I was looking for new opportunities and I even took a pay cut to come down because I wanted to see what else was out there in terms of career opportunities and that I loved Brazil. Addison and Thorburn asked if I knew anything about certain geopolitical topics, and I responded that while I have worked cases, it tended to be really in the weeds, so I often do not see the bigger picture. My response was successful, and they did not ask me any additional questions about my work.

Between about 9:45 pm to 10:00 pm Basurto unexpectedly began conducting an interview at the table. Basurto switched seats with U.S. Employee #1. The interview began in Portuguese and Tebet began to interpret. I was under the impression from Tebet that the interview he planned was to be at another table and I was confused why U.S. Employee #1 was staying. Basurto is American and knew that U.S. Employee #1 and I worked for the federal government, so I was surprised when the interview topic was about Brazilian politics, specifically Bolsonaro, Lula, China's influence, members in the Brazilian government, and two assassinations. The interview was incredibly short, less than fifteen minutes and only about publicly known topics. I was confused and if anything ventured into something more sensitive, I was prepared to leave regardless of U.S. Employee #1 who had invited me. After the interview, I knew I had to report the encounter, so I asked Thorburn for his business card and in exchange, Thorburn gave me his cellphone for me to put in my contact information in return. At this point, U.S. Employee #1 had already given his business card to Thorburn and U.S. Employee #1 seemed to know about Thorburn previously. Additionally, Thorburn and Basurto already knew my name and where I worked from Tebet.

As I mentioned above, Thorburn spoke to me at length twice at the Dobe bar. Everyone was at the table, Thorburn was speaking to me, while the others were speaking to each other in a mix of Portuguese and English; it was very loud. The following are topics he spoke about pertaining to his life, the majority of which he told me between 10:00 pm and 11:00 pm:

1. Thorburn told me that he used to work for Goldman Sachs. During that time, he sold hats with his then girlfriend (the Trump red hats and similar hats with a Christian logo). He was subsequently fired from Goldman Sachs because he was in breach of his visa (you are not allowed to have a side business on the visa he had). Thorburn said the business was in his girlfriend's name, which he tried to argue, but the government liked his excuse even less. Later he found out from a friend who worked with US passports, that he was deemed a threat to national security and was not allowed back in the country (not just for the overreach of his visa). Thorburn said being marked as a threat to national security was absurd. He did markets coverage at Goldman Sachs/securities. He said he was going to marry the woman he had the side business with, she was his fiancé, but that eventually the relationship came to an end because of what happened to him. He said he was front page in the New York Times.
2. Thorburn then mentioned that he has been traveling between Brazil and Paraguay. Thorburn said he has a consulting visa for Brazil. He travels and stays in Brazil three months at a time and returns to Paraguay. He was working on a coconut water project in northern Brazil. He was originally traveling between Brazil, Argentina, Columbia, Bahamas and back home (Australia). He then went to Paraguay. While he heard Paraguay was a pretty dangerous place, when he got there it seemed pretty normal and he thought this would be a good place to start again. Paraguay had international capital, there was lots to be done, and no one was really doing anything in Paraguay. Forestry is Paraguay's competitive advantage. However, through his experiences he does believe there is a deep state in Paraguay. This is influenced by him being marked a national threat in the United States, which he believes is absurd, but as a result has learned that deep states do exist. Having been persecuted and with cancel culture as well, he learned that maybe there is a movement against people like him.

3. Thorburn mentioned Narco drug trafficking that he witnessed.
4. Thorburn mentioned his involvement with the Moonies in Paraguay. (Rise Of The 'Moonies:' Is The Unification Church A Cult? (groovyhistory.com) <https://groovyhistory.com/unification-church-moonie-cult/6>)
5. Thorburn mentioned Wikileaks Julian Paul Assange.
6. Thorburn's lawyer is one of the top lawyers in Paraguay and associated with the Zukalula Family (phonetically spelled).
7. Thorburn went to Paraguay as a normal person and met his mentor "Shakespeare" via Shakespeare's nephew who is one of the top hackers in Paraguay. Shakespeare is in his 60's now. Because the nephew is more "techie" Shakespeare got a long more with Thorburn and developed a friendship via talking about sports and things of the like. They met at a Christmas party. Thorburn mentioned that there really are no Americans in Paraguay, so they stand out. I am not sure who the American he was speaking of. Thorburn said that Shakespeare trained him unofficially and gave him guidance on his life. Additionally, he said that Shakespeare shared things with him that he probably shouldn't have.
8. Thorburn talked extensively and in depth about the Epstein case and his research. Thorburn has Steve Bannon's personal cellphone in his phone and said that Bannon had blocked him. However, what they do (Thorburn and someone else) is call and make recordings. Additionally, they put read receipts on all emails to show that Bannon knew about certain aspects of the Epstein case as it related to CCP (China) and was covering it up. Thorburn has built a huge file with everyone that knew about Epstein and did nothing and when the case is fully exposed, he will be able to expose those that knew and did nothing. For example, Bannon deleted one of Thorburn's tweets which Thorburn took a screen shot. Thorburn reached out and showed Bannon the screenshot and as a result Bannon ran the story. Thorburn also mentioned something about Operation Mockingbird.
9. At this point I could see the emotional toll Thorburn was experiencing and the subsequent rabbit hole he was going down, both by the people he was allegedly associating with and activity he was engaging in, most likely because of the traumatic experience of being exiled from his former career, not allowed into the United States, the loss of his reputation, friends, and loved ones and potentially a preexisting personality for such things. I asked if he had any brothers or sisters to see if he had any support outside of the people he was currently interacting with (religious cult leaders with heavy financial ties, narco drug traffickers, a potential former intelligence officer, a hacker, and questionable journalists). He said he has two younger sisters and that his brother had died of an accidental heroine overdose. Thorburn then expressed that seeing the Narco drug trafficking in Paraguay and the role the CIA played in support of those drug activities really affected him. He mentioned the Golden Triangle and the numerous Aussie kids that were killed because of drugs. I talked about the epic lives we all live and keep secret in our hearts and asked if he still spoke to his mom. He said yes, he talks to her almost every day, but that he has been away a long time. The Trump election wasn't that long along. Thorburn said he was in the USA from 2009 to about 2016 and he has lived many lives since then. I shared that I used to work violent crimes against children and these things can take a toll on you and that I knew someone who was witness to the Lehman Brothers situation the night it happened and the toll it took on him. I said that his life has taken him down this path, from Australia to the United States is one thing, but to Brazil and now Paraguay, how does he see a path out of this for himself. Thorburn responded he is keeping the financial work/business going and that his interest in news reporting is ancillary. He is realizing he cannot do both. Opposition journalists are trying to link him to the National File and Paraguay because he has been aggressive to them. He said though that he might buy a stake in a media outlet. Thorburn also mentioned that he was independently wealthy.

Note: Thorburn appeared to be supporting and leading Basurto who is a reporter for the National File. Thorburn asked questions during the interview. However, Basurto will later claim in his news reporting that Thorburn was his bodyguard and from Texas.

10. I brought up AP and Reuters and asked why he felt those trustworthy news outlets would not be the best place to forward stories and if he did come across something why he did not just inform those news outlets or his own federal government in Australia. Thorburn then said he cannot trust his own government and spoke about the CFP and that the Australian Army was being advised by the Chinese and specifically mentioned one guy who he has a picture of.
11. Thorburn then returned to the topic of Epstein. He showed me a photo of a massive and complex matrix involving CCP, Epstein, congressmen, etc. He mentioned that he forwarded it to U.S. Congresswoman Marjorie Taylor Green. I asked why he would choose her. He said because of her megaphone (access to a large audience) but that she was a POS. Thorburn then mentioned his interactions with her staffer a young male. He said he threatened the staffer by saying he was going to run a negative story about him to get him to respond by playing into the staffer's narcissistic tendencies. It apparently worked, and the staffer responded to Thorburn and gave Thorburn what he needed regarding Epstein.
12. Thorburn shared a lot with me. Specifically, Thorburn also shared that he felt threatened for his life and was concerned about returning to Paraguay. While we all open up to people we feel connected to, I was not sure why Thorburn told me all of this about himself, so I asked. I wasn't quite sure how to word it, so I said that I typically keep my personal life and my work life separate and was he telling me all of this because he wanted to be my friend or because he wanted me to tell someone where I worked (i.e. was he reaching out for help). It was then that he went into detail about feeling unsafe returning to Paraguay, but didn't want to seem overly paranoid. Our conversation was cut off because the group started to head out.

At approximately 11:00 pm the group decided to head to the Jungle Bar. U.S. Employee #1 drove Thorburn and Basurto to the Jungle Bar. While being polite, I said I would meet up with them there. However, once I was able to step away, and collect my thoughts, I did not want to join them. I live next to the Jungle Bar. I did not want U.S. Employee #1 to think something happened to me, so when I got home, I took Tilly (my dog) out and walked to the bar to let them know I was not going to stay.

I believe I got to the bar sometime after midnight. When I arrived, Thorburn was at the other end of the table; I did not interact with him. U.S. Employee Dependent, his date, and her friend arrived minutes after me. I enjoy talking to U.S. Employee Dependent and know his father well. U.S. Employee Dependent and I were talking when Basurto started to pepper U.S. Embassy Dependent with questions. The first few questions were benign, but then Basurto directly asked U.S. Embassy Dependent if he knew anyone at the embassy that works for the "CIA". I told U.S. Employee Dependent to stop speaking and advised him Basurto was with the media. U.S. Employee Dependent immediately stop talking. Basurto left the table.

Meanwhile, a redhead Brazilian female had shown interest in Thorburn and gave him her phone number, which U.S. Employee #1 delivered to Thorburn. Thorburn did not seem interested, so the redhead female asked U.S. Employee #1 to wrangle Thorburn and get him to come over to her table. She was at a large table with many people, celebrating someone's birthday from my understanding. U.S. Employee #1 went over to talk to Thorburn and brought him to the redhead female's table. U.S. Employee #1 also stayed at the table where the birthday was taking place. Note: The redhead was not Tebet's girlfriend as Basurto will later allege.

While my intention was not to stay, Tebet came over and sat with me to talk and U.S. Employee Dependent's two female friends started talking to me. All were enjoying having a fun time with Tilly (my dog). The two female friends were nice, and we talked about the course they were taking in college, career plans, saving for retirement. I stayed and chatted with them. Moreover, I also subconsciously stayed because I noticed that U.S. Employee #1 was showing signs of being drunk. I had been at a family party of another embassy employee where U.S. Employee #1 became intoxicated. Additionally, I felt protective of U.S. Employee Dependent, and something felt off about the evening. In recent years we all have interacted with people who have extreme views, but this felt different.

While I was speaking to the two female friends of U.S. Employee Dependent, I suddenly heard Basurto, who was sitting at the other end of the table, say to a gentleman with a beard, accent, and black and white shirt, "She works for the FBI." I turned my head and looked in the direction of Basurto thinking to myself, what the heck. Then the man responded, "No she doesn't." I thought to myself, great problem solved he does not believe him. I also heard Basurto say that they have confirmed reports that the CIA was involved in the election (Brazilian). Then, I saw Basurto begin to record me while asking the man if I work for the CIA. I responded and said I do not work there and do not film me. The two female friends informed me that the man with the beard had purchased all the food and drinks in the bar for everyone. I told the two females that we were leaving. I got up, found a waiter, and just gave him cash (there was no bill, but I wanted to make sure that the one beer I had and the young ladies' beer each was covered.)

I gave the waiter the money and then suddenly Thorburn came up to me and said he was sick. He was shaking through his whole body. I asked him if he was allergic to something he might have eaten and he said no. He appeared to be really sick. I said there was a hospital right around the corner, did he need to be taken there. He said no. I then said, "This might not be the most opportune time, but your colleague just recorded me saying I work somewhere I don't." Thorburn then said he would delete the video.

I went up to U.S. Employee #1 to talk about Thorburn being sick. Basurto also came up to U.S. Employee #1. We briefly discussed the video and Basurto said he would delete it, but his demeanor had completely changed, and I did not believe him. I believe I then stepped away for a minute. When I came back to U.S. Employee #1, Basurto was in U.S. Employee #1's face asking to get his bags out of U.S.

Employee #1's car. U.S. Employee #1 was under the influence of alcohol. Basurto then turned to me and asked if I would get their bags out. I said I could. U.S. Employee #1 said to Basurto to not talk to me, that I was his friend and to talk only to him. At that moment, because of Basurto's movement and Thorburn's behavior behind him, I moved away quickly. As soon as I moved away, I turned around and saw U.S. Employee #1 laying on the ground not moving. I could not see U.S. Employee #1's face, only his shoulders to his feet. I thought U.S. Employee #1 might be knocked out or dead. I saw a man holding Thorburn back (later I learned it was Tebet holding Thorburn back). Thorburn was screaming at U.S. Employee #1, "Why is the CIA after me!" U.S. Employee #1 started to move. Note: U.S. Employee #1 had multiple bruises on his stomach afterwards. I immediately went to get U.S. Employee Dependent and his two friends. The two friends had already ordered separate Ubers (because I had told them previously that we were leaving). I made sure the two friends got into their Ubers. I then told U.S. Employee Dependent I was taking him home. My phones had died so I could not call Legat Marco Gonzalez, Jr. So, I told U.S. Employee Dependent to call his dad who I believe was in the United States on travel because we needed to report this right away. I spoke to U.S. Employee Dependent's dad and told him what happened as U.S. Employee Dependent, Tilly (my dog), and I walked safely around the block. Things cooled off, I quickly returned to the bar to make sure U.S. Employee #1 was okay. Thorburn and Basurto were not at the bar. Note: The Jungle Bar is outside. I told Tebet that I could not stay and would he please make sure U.S. Employee #1 made it home okay. As U.S. Employee Dependent and I left the bar, we passed the Civil Police as they arrived and were walking towards the bar. I took U.S. Employee Dependent back to my apartment, got my truck and drove him home. When I got back to my apartment, I charged my phone and sent Legat Marco Gonzalez, Jr. a message at about 4 am that I needed to speak to him as soon as he woke up. I went to bed, woke up early, drove to Marco's apartment at about 7:30 am and waited for him to get my message. He got my message, came down to get me at 7:52 am. I explained to Marco what took place. Marco then immediately called Regional Security Officer Roberto Bernardo and briefed him on the situation.

On the evening of Friday, December 1, 2022, I ran into Tebet and U.S. Employee #1. I was eating dinner in a nearby restaurant on my way home. Tebet shared with me that he was receiving the same threatening communications and that while carrying a firearm in Brazil is legal, he has never done so, but now he did even when he walked his dog (he felt that threatened). Additionally, the threatening communications he received included videos accusing his girlfriend of being a CIA asset along with him and he had not told her yet, because he did not want to worry her. He then said that the guy with the beard did not pay for everyone and skipped out on the bill. Tebet said he reported the incident to State Department RSO who had a member of their team reach out to Tebet. Tebet had the CCTV footage from that night and in addition shared with the RSO team member that he was being stalked online. He used those exact words he said "stalked" because identifiable information about him was realized (I also experienced that same). Tebet also wondered if Thorburn had left the country because even after blocking Thorburn, he received messages from a Brazilian area code.

Below are the threatening messages I received to include links to videos on YouTube, Twitter, and Rumble/National File. Note: Messages were set to disappear so I was not able to capture all of them, but was able to capture several. Basurto has many platforms, which were listed above. I only went to the platforms that were sent directly to me. I assume he has posted not only on his other platforms, but on the websites of the reporters that interviewed him. I did not look at any other sites other than those I was threatened with. Moreover, Thorburn used the term "KP" and "Parky" to describe me in messages which is something my friends call me and most likely he found on Facebook. When I went to block Basurto, I saw he posted this message on Facebook: Agent Orange: are you on Facebook? He also posted the same message on Twitter:

In addition to the numerous videos already posted on the internet, in which Tebet, U.S. Employee #1, and Parkhouse are tagged, Thorburn is using the same technique he used on Steve Bannon and the Congressional Staffer. He is trying to intimidate us by threatening to ruin our professional reputations with false information. We are all tagged in a news article posted by the National File which is an American right-wing blog and news website. National File - Wikipedia Moreover, while U.S. Employee #1 has a common name, Tebet and I have unique names and when you Google us, these videos come up in the first few entries. This will continue to cause harm to Parkhouse and Tebet. This is especially egregious because we did literally nothing wrong to Thorburn and Basurto, in fact we were both very professional to both men. Moreover, I offered to help Thorburn get to a hospital when he said he was sick, and I said I would get their bags out of U.S. Employee #1's car.

On Friday November 18th, Addison Basurto, an American journalist for The National File, along his bodyguard, were attacked by Miguel Contreras, Second Secretary at the Embassy of the United States of America in Brasilia, Brazil while FBI Agent, Kristin Parkhouse, was present during their investigation and reportage on the largest pro-liberty demonstrations in the history of the Federative Republic of Brazil.

The attack occurred after the journalist requested to have his backpack returned, which was in the diplomatic-plated vehicle in which Contreras drove the duo to the “Jungle Bar,” an establishment owned by Renato Tebet, 33, the cousin of Simone Tebet, an ally of Luiz Inacio “Lula” Da Silva, who placed third in the 2022 Brazilian presidential election.

- The car driven by Miguel Contreras had diplomatic plates, and the State Department employee boasted to Basurto and his security officer that diplomatic immunity made them untouchable by Brazilian law enforcement authorities.
- FBI Agent, Kristin Parkhouse, sat idly by as Contreras attacked Basurto multiple times, even after she was asked to intervene. After Basurto requested the return of his backpack, which contained all of his electronics, notes and laptop, Contreras became belligerent, verbally and physically assaulting the American journalist.
- The bar owner who facilitated the meeting of all people present, Renato Tebet, is a cousin of Simone Tebet, who placed 3rd in the 2022 Brazilian Presidential election.
- Renato Tebet told Basurto he stands to “make a lot of money” if Lula takes power on January 1st, 2023.

After a young red-headed woman, Roberta Cahú, along with several other patrons at the bar, succeeded in getting the writer's bodyguard to leave the table and speak with the young lady, a bearded man who had been buying drinks for all of the patrons of the bar sat across the table from the young writer and began to attempt intimidate him.

"Hello, I find you very handsome. If you want to send me a message: 9998833 – Roberta"

The bearded man, who claimed his name was "Dominic," appeared to be an ally of Renato Tebet and sat down at the table across from the National File writer.

Dominic told Basurto that "we are reading every text, every [cell phone] ping, every article you write." He told the American reporter that "the election has already been decided, and there is nothing you can do about it."

He repeatedly asked the journalist to “go for a walk” with him, to which the American replied, “I’m not going for a walk with you.” Dominic, who has bought drinks for the entire bar, also attempted to get the National File reporter to consume more and more alcohol.

He also told Basurto had experience working in both Iraq and Afghanistan. “Dominic” told Basurto that the redheaded woman sitting next to his security officer was with his group. “She’s with us,” Dominic said.

After Basurto notified his security officer that they had walked into an intelligence trap, the pair attempted a counterespionage attack, with the bodyguard recording the interactions between “Dominic” and Basurto.

Dominic then attempted to mock the journalist for notifying his bodyguard what was happening.

“Sit the fuck down and act like a professional journalist. Just act like a professional journalist. Calling your big friend [the bodyguard] to protect you is just damn,” Dominic said.

“You know I’m smarter than you, right?” the journalist told the man who called himself Dominic.

The man, who appeared to speak French and had a noticeable accent, told the journalist “Yeah, and then you [will] end up in a ship in the middle of the fucking ocean in a black-site.”

Dominic admitted that he was “at work.”

“You keep making videos of me. You want to make a video of me drinking at work?” the man asked the journalist.

“You know her, don’t you?” the journalist asked.

“No,” the man called Dominic replied.

“Don’t film me,” the FBI Agent, Kristin Parkhouse said. “Don’t film me.”

Both FBI Agent Parkhouse and the “State Department” employee, Contreras, gave their official work contact information to Basurto’s bodyguard, a British Texan who his client calls “Big Tex.”

After the investigative reporter, Basurto, requested for the return of his backpack, which included all of his electronics and notes, Contreras, the U.S. State Department employee, turned on a dime and became belligerent towards both him and his security officer.

He then verbally abused Basurto and physically attacked him multiple times, after which the reporter's bodyguard put Contreras on the ground before the guard was held back by the owner of the bar, Renato Tebet.

Basurto held the attacker on the ground but did not strike him. After several seconds Contreras relented and said he would return the backpack.

After he did, he told Basurto, "If I ever see you again, I'm going to fing kill you." Earlier in the evening, Renato Tebet, the owner of both the "Jungle Bar" and "Dobe," the first locale where at the reporter interviewed a local conservative campaign manager and a lawyer, told Basurto that he stood to "make a lot of money" if Lula took power on January 1st, 2023.

It was after this comment was made that Parkhouse, the alleged FBI supervisor, told the investigator that he would "make a good CIA agent."

Stay tuned to National File for more updates on the political unrest in Brazil.

Subject: OFFICIAL COMPLAINT — MIGUEL CONTRERAS' ASSAULT ON USA JOURNALIST IN BRASILIA

Ms. Kristen Parkhouse,

Please advise next steps for Addison and I to lodge an official Complaint — including the names of your supervisors and/or other State Dept. whistleblower channels available to us — for the repeated and sustained assaults on Addison and I by Miguel Contreras that occurred on Saturday morning of November 20, 2022, much of which was captured on our personal camera phones, as well as on Renato Tebet's 'Jungle Bar' CCTV cameras.

I note that this email is going to your official government email addresses and hope it is treated with prompt attention.

Resisting the lodgment of our Complaint will not work in your favor, believe me.

For recording/documentation purposes, re-sending the below to Parkhouse and Contreras at US State Department in Brasilia to circumvent the possibility of Parkhouse and Contreras having "blocked" my other email account (lukethorburn@protonmail.com in Cc on this email) to avoid facing this serious Complaint and ongoing situation.
