Subject: Statute of Limitations Issue

Dear [REDACTED]

When Brad and I argued before the Eleventh Circuit, we raised the issue of a possible expiration of the statute of limitations for prosecuting Epstein. We were concerned that the ten-year statute might possibly expire on crimes against our clients in approximately April of 2015.

In rebuttal, Epstein's counsel contended that Epstein had signed a waiver of the statute of limitations, and so the statute would not expire in April of 2015.

Can you shed any light on whether (1) Epstein has signed a waiver and/or extension of the statute of limitations for crimes against our clients and (2) if so, how long that extension was for? This information could be important for Judge Marra in considering how rapidly our clients' case needs to be moved along.

Thanks in advance for any help you can provide on this.
