Hi again,
I have a serious question I need to ask as [REDACTED] the journalist, is wanting to sit with [REDACTED] outside of the interview room, as a confidante giving me her word that she will speak of nothing about the interview but between you and i, is that really the best idea? I don't doubt that [REDACTED] is out to help me but I can't help but worry about every minute detail, i really don't know. What do you guys think, is there anything i should be concerned about?

Thanks
[REDACTED]

Hi [REDACTED] -- Yes, I did contact [REDACTED] yesterday to confirm that, if you are still represented, your attorneys have no objection to us speaking with you. Although we have not and will not be speaking with you about the subject of your civil lawsuit, I want to make certain that I am carefully adhering to the Rules of the Florida Bar. I hope to speak with you late this afternoon (early tomorrow morning for you).

Thank you.

Hi [REDACTED]
I was just contacted by the [REDACTED] asking if I need their legal representation and if I was contacted about not speaking to f.b.i. They said you called them to ask, and I wasn't sure what I could really say since we haven't spoken latley. Please give a call and let me know if I do need legal reps.
Take care
[REDACTED]

Dear [REDACTED] I wanted to touch base with you and just let you know that [REDACTED] and I are working out logistics on our end to meet with you on Monday or Tuesday. I have to be in court most of the day tomorrow but hope to call you tomorrow night with some details.
I am off to sleep now. Thank you for your patience.

Dear [REDACTED]

Please treat this as a confidential communication.

Thank you for contacting me. Special Agent [REDACTED] and I would like to speak with you at 9:00 a.m. your time, Tuesday, March 8, 2011. According to my calculations, [REDACTED] here in West Palm Beach.

We would prefer to speak with you via Skype, if possible. We feel that a video-conference would put you a bit more at ease, and would be a better way for us to introduce ourselves to you. [REDACTED] has set up a Skype account with user name [REDACTED]

If you are unable to sign in to Skype, or if you cannot locate Special Agent [REDACTED] log-in, please send me an email. In the alternative, if we do not hear from you on Skype by 5:10, we will call you on the telephone number that you provided.

Thank you again.

Dear [REDACTED]

I am sending you this email on a strictly background, not for attribution basis. I will not disclose it nor any future communications between us without your explicit permission.

[REDACTED] has asked me to give you her cell phone number.

She is in [REDACTED]

I am copying her in by email but she will be grateful any initial contact with her is by phone [REDACTED]. A good time for her to speak is nine am her time tomorrow [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] would prefer me to be present when you initiate communication with her. We both realize that any such communication must be in confidence. I will be there for support, not as a journalist.

I am sure you understand that it has been a big step for her coming forward. She has [REDACTED]

I am a former investigative reporter for New York Magazine where my colleagues included [REDACTED]. I understand the sensitivity of this situation.

Frankly, if I still worked there, I would publish everything that I believe happened to [REDACTED] and that now may be happening to a new generation of minors.

But I now run the NY bureau for a UK paper and I am restrained because of the UK's libel laws.

So [REDACTED] and I are putting our trust in you.

Best regards,
[REDACTED]
