Kadina - Township History - Tight nit community - Township Structure

* Kadina SA is a township community that is segregated into tight nit groups of association which discriminate against one another within the circles of association. Kadina is a township of group followers associating with only the tight nit members of the association, known as "Clicks". Any person not agreeing with the set mind or activities of the "Clicks" are out cast within the township and are discriminated against any opportunities regardless of qualifications or abilities and are made to feel they must leave the township, made to feel not welcome. Narrow mind set of the township, "Your not a local" rotates within the tight nit click associations (groups) who portray themselves as being above everyone else in the township and are associated in religious groups, Rotary Clubs, Council offices, Local Government Offices, Car industries, Farm industries, Industries, Police services and Medical Industry.

TOWNSHIP HISTORY - KADINA POLICE DEPARTMENT - VICTIMISATION

Police officer of the Kadina Police Department married targeted victims childhood friend, Nicole Oliver. Dissolution of the marriage resulted in the estranged partner of the marriage Nicole Oliver being targeted by the estranged husband (police officer) who included other members of the Kadina Police Department in his personal affairs of the dissolution of the marriage, who proceeded to target Nicole Oliver continuously for 2 years following the end of the marriage with continuous harassment and victimisation.

Following 3 days of the victim hiding in her brothers house the victims mother entered the brothers house and informed her daughter she had been contacted by Christopher McGinley who insisted the victim return to the domestic family home in Moonta (his parents home where she had been entrapped) and collect her belongings.

The victim argued with her mother and refused to collect her belongings, the mother insisted and accompanied the victim back to the Moonta home of Christopher McGinley. The victim knocked on the front door of the home, her parents standing behind her. Christopher McGinley opened the front door, grabbed the victim by the scruff of her neck and pulled her into the house, holding the divers knife to her throat and stated "Today you die" The victim struggled and broke loose from the perpetrator and knife point to her throat and ran to the kitchen, running around the kitchen table trying to escape, while being viciously yelled at stating "If I can't have you no one can", while waving the knife at her. The victim became trapped again by Christopher McGinley at knife point to her throat, when a knock at the front door, yelling "it's the police" was heard, summoned by the victims parents. The police officer talked Christopher McGinley into approaching with the victim the front window of the house where he was standing. Christopher McGinley walked the victim to the front window of the house while holding the knife into her back. Christopher McGinley on request of the police officer slid the front window open a little with the victim standing in front of him facing the window. When the window slid open the police officer rushed at the window slid it open fast and reached for the victim, pulling her out of the house through the open window.

The police officer stated to the victims parents "she's like a puppet, I can move her anywhere" - Obvious severe shock of the victim - [REDACTED]

The victim and her parents accompanied the police officer to the police station and gave a formal statement, including the previous 12 months of extreme violence and abuse and entrapment. The victim gave the statement and pressed charges against Christopher McGinley. The police officer was a witness to the endangerment of the victim at knife point and the entrapment. Christopher McGinley was only issued a Restraining order based on this report, police witness and account of entrapment and extreme violence of endangerment to the victim.
