Dear Friend of NFTE:

The Network for Teaching Entrepreneurship (NFTE) will celebrate its 10th anniversary in Chicago with an interesting evening of networking and discussion on March 13 at the Museum of Contemporary Art. As event co-chairs, it is our pleasure to invite you to join us.

Two of our city's foremost entrepreneurs, Ken Griffin, Founder and CEO of Citadel, and Larry Levy, Founder and Chairman of Levy Restaurants, will take part in an interview-style conversation about their experiences and the importance of entrepreneurship in today's economic climate. We will also have the opportunity to meet some creative entrepreneurs inspired by NFTE. We have had the fortune of meeting some of these young people, and we guarantee that you will come away impressed.

Since 2003, NFTE has reached over 13,500 low-income students providing them the opportunity to tap into their industriousness and desire to increase their financial resources, and build their entrepreneurial mindset to recognize opportunity, persevere through challenge, and set and achieve focused goals. The program teaches how discipline, responsibility, and perseverance combined with creativity and critical thinking leads to academic, personal, and professional success. Together, we are shifting the way students view opportunity and potential success in their lives, transforming them into fully participating and creative members of civic, economic, and social life.

This is not your typical corporate fundraiser, but rather an insightful and interactive occasion with business leaders like yourself who value cultivating entrepreneurship in our community. We hope we can count on you to lend your support. Enclosed is a response form with further details about this unique night.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Joe Mansueto
