We do have lots of people to be concerned about -- which is very nice we have so many wonderful family members to love on!

anyway, Braden most likely tore some ligaments, as the xrays did not show any fracture. that being said, the dr. wants us to come back next week to take a look at his wrist again and if need be take another xray to be sure there isn't a fracture. He still has his temporary cast and sling and wants him to keep that on all week (and continue elevating his wrist and icing for at least 20 mins a day).

so, I will continue to help him with his homework and wash his hair in the sink!!
