OMG! i am reading this and laughing so hard the girls in the office want to know what I am reading! I did happen to steal this painting and it is hanging in my dining room in CT...It is very well received and people ask me where I got it all the time...I told them Bobby Slayton painted it and gave it to me as I am his girlfriend, etcand blah blah blah also..

Anyway, I unfortunately have not seen this painting ...sad it was stolen. It feels like fall here today!

Hey Girlfriend! Would you please help humor (shut up) my wife for a few minutes? After I showed her the painting of "Mr. Meat-o" (which shockingly she liked!) and told her that you didn't know who the artist was, and mentioned that you vaguely remember it possibly come from a student art show, she asked me to send you this photo of a very well received painting that my wife's daughter's friend did at NYU (did you follow that?) that happened to be stolen and my wife thought somehow somehow YOU may have seen it! I said "why the fuck would Leslie have seen THAT? She has nothing to do with buying or picking out the art for the houses or office. " Well just ask her, it doesn't hurt...blah...blah...blah... Oh, and Blah." OK I did my part. Just tell me you've never seen it so she can start hounding me about something new this morning. Even if you stole it personally and have it in your house, enjoy. I don't need to know anything. See you very soon I hope. Already miss NYC. Hot as Hell here in LA!!!
