

From: "Robert" <[REDACTED]>

To: "[REDACTED]" >

Subject: FW:

Date: Mon, 07 Oct 2013 14:16:50 +0000

Attachments: Caffery_raised_panel.pdf

If you want the two panes of glass at the top of the door you can get it at no extra cost. I have a problem with the large raised panels on the bottom. They will definitely crack. So my suggestion is to use the smaller raised panels like in the attachment from door boy. I like the single set of windows. Don't be offended. The added money was for finishing. The italics means nothing other than I press a key on my keyboard and I can't stop it.

From: Tony Molinaro [mailto:[REDACTED]]

Sent: Monday, October 07, 2013 10:10 AM

To: [REDACTED]

Subject:

Rob, This is a cedar raised door, they designed it square top but I can get it arched. The price on the Raised panel door with the 2 sections of glass would be the same price with 1 section of glass. Remember that price includes staining.

Tony Molinaro

Sales Representative

Overhead Door Company of Fairfield County

2 Broad Street

Norwalk, CT 06851

[REDACTED]