frequently asked questions:

What if only part of my order shipped?

In some cases, there may be a difference above between "item(s) in your order" and the items that have shipped. Sometimes we send items in multiple shipments—don't worry, we haven't forgotten about them. Though we try to minimize the number of packages, all items may not have been in the same location at time of shipment. To check the status of other items in your order, visit my account.

How will I know when my items will arrive?

We do our best during the Checkout process to accurately estimate when your items will be delivered. The estimated delivery date is based on several factors, including the destination address and how fast the carrier can transport your item(s). Click the red Track Package button above to visit the shipping carrier's website and track your package. It may take up to 48 hours for information to appear. For more information, visit tracking your order.

How do I contact the carrier who is delivering my item?

Click the red Track Package button above to view your shipment progress or to contact the carrier.
