Larry,

My apologies for this inconvenience. I have updated the account from the original settings, and the alerts have been set for the authorized users.

There are currently no accounts set for [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]. Is it possible that their accounts were set up with different email addresses? If not, they can create their own usernames and then we can link them to your account or we can create new accounts for them and send them their login information. We would need to know their full names if you prefer that we create their accounts.

Best regards,

Andrew Taylor
