

From: SCOTT DENETT <[REDACTED]>
To: Lesley Groff <[REDACTED]>
Subject: Re: iCloud Contacts
Date: Wed, 27 Feb 2013 16:28:52 +0000

Let your husband it guy have a shot signs point to he is going to fix it

Sent from my iPhone

On Feb 27, 2013, at 10:38 AM, Lesley Groff <[REDACTED]> wrote:

Hellooo on this soggy Wed.

Ok, I'm at JE's and my contacts here state at the top of the address book: "All Contacts". I am pretty sure that is what it says at my house as well. When I go to File, Accounts...iCloud IS checked and enabled...On My Mac: nothing is checked (not Synchronize w/Yahoo or Synchronize with Google) At home, neither is checked as well.

Below is from Ike's IT guy:

It could be when we authorized the computer for Ike's itunes. Let me look on my laptop tonight and see if I can find anything to help explain

Ike told me he can no longer log in to his iTunes...he can only access iTunes now from my account (which is greatly pissing him off!)

Anyway, that is where we are...let me know if you have any thoughts or if I should try something. All the updates I added yesterday at HBRK in the contacts are here and working properly at JE's house. I can see what is happening at home tonight with my contacts...

Thanks, Les

On Feb 26, 2013, at 4:12 PM, Scott Denett wrote:

if your husband uses his computer to connect to a private network for his job and has an it guy that set that up at home also could be an issue

On Feb 26, 2013, at 3:58 PM, Lesley Groff wrote:

Hi Scott...I am at HBRK today and when I go to my contacts (by just clicking on the icon at the bottom of screen..not logging in to icloud.com) ...and the contacts state at the top of each page: All iCloud...my computer at home does NOT say this. When I go to File, Preferences, Accounts, I see iCloud and enable this account is checked...when I go to On My Mac nothing is checked (synchronize with Yahoo, or Synchronize with Google) Neither is checked...

Tomorrow I will be working from JE's house...I will look to see what is happening there with my contacts as well...

thanks, Les